

SCIENCE DAY 2022

What an eggciting Science Day it has been!
When digging in the Rainbow Garden, Mr Williams found a huge dinosaur egg!

To find out what type of dinosaur it belonged to, we needed to take a frozen sample of blood to the lab and investigated the best way to stop it from melting.

The children also learnt about Mary Anning, a pioneering palaeontologist and fossil collector whilst taking part in lots of different fun science experiments. Thank you to all the parents who sent in videos of their science hobbies/jobs for the children to watch.

The children and staff have looked fantastic dressed up as scientists and in their science themed tops!
