WildArt 2020

Art

Overview

In this lesson we will be looking at creating a unique individual piece of art that can be entered into a national competition! We will look over some of the techniques we have already learnt and used in school this year.

There will be a link to the RSPB website where the details of the competition are and suggestions of resources that you could use to create your masterpiece!

It is WWF Week!

WWF (World Wildlife Fund) is a global charity that works in over 100 countries to help protect wildlife and their habitats.

Another charity that helps to protect wildlife is the RSPB (Royal Society for the protection of birds).

The RSPB is a charity which operates in England, Wales and Scotland.

WildArt

The RSPB are holding an art competition called WildArt 2020! They are on the lookout for talented young artists just like you to enter their exciting competition.

The aim is to create a piece of art inspired by nature, maybe something of your favourite animal or an animal that you have learned about in school, maybe one of the endangered animals we look at! Let your imagination run WILD!

There are 2 categories to choose from:

1. Real life - using paint, pastels, pens or pencil
1. Go Wild - experiment with textiles, sculpture, recycled and eco-friendly materials, collages - anything goes!

Real life category

Go Wild category

This will be a unique and individual piece of art where you can really let your imagination run WILD!

Here are some ideas of animals that you might want to use but it doesn't have to be one of these if you think of something else...

Remember, you want your masterpiece to be exciting and eye catching!

Think about your chosen animal's habitat so that you can decorate your background to suit them and make your art bold and colourful.

Here are some ideas...
